SOUTHPORT, N. C., Sept. 13.—The coast guard cutter Modoc today sought the 7,000-ton tanker Shreveport, converted by an explosion yesterday into a blazing pyre with four bodies aboard.

Thirty others of the crew were rescued, but one man died later. Four others were treated at a hospital here.

While the Modoc hunted the flaming ship, reported to be a menace to shipping 125 miles off shore here, the twenty-nine survivors described the accident.

Captain S. A. Simmons, of Baltimore, said the tanker was proceeding empty from Philadelphia to Texas. Suddenly the decks bulged. The Shreveport was owned by the Cities Service Transportation Company of New York.

APPROPRIATION IS SOUGHT BY TURNER TO FINANCE PROBE

Attorney General Asks
$50,000 To Uncover
Frauds

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 13.—Members of the Ohio State emergency board were to meet in Columbus today to consider Attorney General Edward C. Turner's request for a $50,000 appropriation to carry on the special grand jury probe of election conditions here. There was little likelihood of Turner's request being turned down, it was said.

The attorney general said he would not go to Columbus for the meeting. He is a member of the board, but has delegated his power of voting to his first assistant, Col. C. D. Davis. This was taken to indicate that Turner has struck a trail here which may lead to fraud revelations.

Meanwhile the trend of inquiry turned to investigations of registrations in the 12th ward.

Figures in the possession of the attorney general were said to show that 6800 persons registered in the ward in 1924, a presidential year. In 1927, a year in which the city-wide registration was nearly 100,000 below the total of 1924, 6,400 eligible voters were listed.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 13.—Herbert Hoover may make one speech in Ohio, possibly at Cleveland, during the fall campaign, according to Charles D. Simeral, Steubenville, following a conference at Chicago with representatives of the Republican national committee. Simeral is chairman of the speakers' bureau at Ohio Republican headquarters.

The tentative plans for the national campaign did not include an Ohio appearance. Simeral said, but it was found that the presidential nominee will cross the state near the end of the campaign and that he may have time to deliver one speech.

Definite plans will be made in the near future, according to Simeral.

Charles Curtis, vice-presidential nominee, will make two speeches in Ohio, one probably at Columbus and the other either at Toledo, Cincinnati or Cleveland. Senator Borah, of Idaho, will probably make one speech in the state, and several other national speakers are to be slated for Ohio later in the campaign.

Myles Y. Cooper, gubernatorial nominee, and other Republican candidates for state offices are to meet here tomorrow with women campaign workers, county chairmen, and state central committee women, according to announcement by Mrs. Wilma Sinclair Le Van, former national committee woman, now in charge of the campaign work among Ohio women.

Cooper, Mrs. Le Van and Campaign Worker Harry D. Silver are scheduled to address the women workers.

PASSENGERS ARE

SHAKEN IN WRECK

DETROIT, Sept. 13.—The "Red Arrow," crack Pennsylvania train from New York, crashed today in an open switch at the suburban town of Lincoln Park and collided with two freight cars on a siding.

The passengers on the all-steel coaches were shaken up considerably, and the engine was damaged when it overturned, but no one was injured severely enough to be taken to a hospital. The train left New York at 3:20 p. m. yesterday.

Hosts at the meeting will be bankers from Hamilton, Oxford, Seven Mile, Somerville, Trenton and Okenea.

MAY BOLT HAGUE

BELGRADE, JUGOSLAVIA, Sept. 13.—The Jugo-Slav delegation to the Hague Tribunal will leave the tribunal, it was understood to-day, if the claim of Grand Duke Friedrich for 10,000,000,000 dollars for the confiscation of his estate at Belje during the war is accepted for consideration.

GANGSTERS INVADE HOSPITAL TO RESCUE TWO PRISONERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Gangsters invaded a hospital today to rescue two of their members, who were held in the prison ward, killed a patrolman but were repelled by nurses and internes and had to flee without rescuing the two inmates.

One of the prisoners was James May, who broke his leg recently while attempting to escape from police who had surprised burglars.

PIECE OF AMUNDSEN AIRPLANE FOUND

OLSO, NORWAY, Sept. 13.—A piece of an airplane wing identified as belonging to Roald Amundsen's Latham plane was found in the Tromsø Channel today.

Its position was believed to indicate that Amundsen and his party were forced down soon after they left Tromsø last June to search for survivors from dirigible Italia.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 13.—Search for the body of Joseph Stein, 45, will be continued today, it was reported.

MAN DROWNED

AKRON, O., Sept. 13.—Thomas E. McShaffrey, 52, head of the T. E. McShaffrey Construction Co., was prominent in Akron's church and civic affairs.

Death came unexpectedly. He had complained of a pain over the heart and a doctor was called. A few moments later McShaffrey was dead.

The McShaffrey Company is widely known over the state for its big construction projects.

McShaffrey was building for Akron a sewage disposal plant which he was to complete in the near future.

He was building for the city, it is believed, to have brought on the attack.

BUY-AT-HOME PLAN BEING URGED HERE BY STORE MANAGER

"One of the greatest movements in local success is the buy-at-home movement which has gradually been gaining impetus during the past few years," says Purl E. Cox, manager of the J. C. Penney Co. store in this city.

"It is the keynote to a successful city or town, the expression of confidence in the town and its ability to meet the competition of the rest of the United States."

"The buy-at-home movement is a co-operative one, requiring the interested help of the local merchant, the local residents and the local newspapers and other factors in publicity."

"If the townspeople show confidence in the local merchant, he can, in turn, repay their confidence by carrying a line of merchandise which will give them a range of selection and a standard of value which will equal that to be found in any city or town within trading radius."

"The local merchant owes it to the townspeople to tell them what he has in stock and what values he is able to offer. Here is where the local newspaper becomes the means of communication between the merchant and the customer."

"With modern methods of transportation, with modern buying facilities, with modern roads and conveniences, the local store in a city or town is never more than a few hours away from the very latest in materials, styles and values."

"The automobile has shown this to be true. More and more the live merchant in other lines is coming to the customer first."

"The customer reads the local newspaper, sees that right at his her door there are selections in clothing, footwear, furniture, the entire range of necessities and luxuries, which are metropolitan in their scope."

FORMER RESIDENT CLAIMED BY DEATH

O. H. Anderson, 83, former Greene County, died at his home in Los Angeles, Calif., Saturday, according to word received here.

"Steps that the local merchant may take in the buy-at-home movement include attractive and carefully prepared local advertising, tastefully arranged local window displays and high standards of service to the customer inside the store."

"This program will instill the local residents with a feeling of confidence for the local store."

"I am so happy that the last pimple is gone—"

WITHOUT this handicap, there returns the very natural confidence, joy and cherished pride of possessing a clear skin.

Men and women both justly covet admiration, and you can expect such satisfaction only if you are happy in a clear, unblemished skin.

The sure way to reach this state is through the blood.

Red blood cells are Nature's elements for building and sustaining the body.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

You know a clear skin comes from within. Correct the cause —through the blood—and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.

Thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking a few bottles of S.S.S.—Nature's own tonic for restoring the appetite—building strength—and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

30,000 MILES in 26,326 MINUTES

You can experience the thrill of driving a car identical with those which won this amazing victory over time and distance. For The President Eight roadsters and sedans which made the greatest record in the history of transportation were chosen at random from the Studebaker assembly line by A. A. A. officials.

At Atlantic City Speedway these four shining-new President Eights, their motors sealed by the A. A. A., swung wide-open into an ordeal such as no cars ever faced before. For 19 days and 18 nights the two roadsters averaged better than 68 miles per hour, the sedans 64.15 and 63.99 miles per hour! Any one of these four Studebaker Presidents might just as easily have been your new car. But for pure chance they would have been sent to some Studebaker dealer.

There's a new Studebaker President Eight sedan at (think of it) $1685, waiting for you to command its power. From the great 109 horsepower motor to the velvet-riding ball bearing spring shackles—an exclusive Studebaker feature—it's as like the four record-breaking Presidents as the four corners of a square! Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do: give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug. Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the cruel pangs of colic or constipation, or diarrhea, etc., too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

The condition of Mrs. Virginia Canny, who has been critically ill at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, is slightly improved.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR WHOLE DUTY—Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man.—Ecc. 12:13.

NEW HOPE FOR MEXICO

There is real hope for the future of Mexico if every one, people and politicians alike, will take deeply to heart and constantly remember the words spoken, apparently with great feeling, by President Calles at the opening of the thirty-third Mexican congress in Mexico City a few days ago.

"To the whole Mexican family," he said, "the opportunity has come to make a decided and final effort to pass from the category of people and government of a dictator to the higher, more dignified, more useful and more civilized conditions of a nation of institutions and laws."

But of more immediate importance than this abstract adjuration was this positive declaration by the outgoing president of the Mexican republic: "I want to state neither in the period following the provisional term nor at any other time shall I aspire to the presidency of my country. My resolution constitutes a positive and unchangeable fact, that never for any reason or under any circumstances shall I return to the Presidency of the republic."

No such promise as this was ever before made to the congress or the people of Mexico; or if any like it ever was made it was not kept. In a speech before the congress in the fall of 1913, Victoriano Huerta, then president, made use of the famous words of Napoleon—"The law is not violated if the country be saved." This easy flirting with the law for the sake of expediency has long been the habit of Mexico's rulers. It is good to hear that the practice is to stop.

President Calles, at any rate, cannot afford, after this definite declaration, to go back upon his word, and the other statesmen in Mexico will do well to follow his example. President Calles has made, besides, the same suggestion to his people that they refrain from electing military men to the presidency.

Mexico is sick of war and of bloodshed. In the less than 20 years since the close of the long and peaceful reign of Porfirio Diaz, violence and death have shadowed the men who followed him in that high office. Madero, Carranza and Obregon were assassinated. Huerta, who was deposed, managed to get out of the country, and later died in his bed.

TEACHING A UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard university, recently invested a little nest egg of some $70,000 in beautifully engraved stock, wakes up to find the cash gone and now sits alone with his memories.

The stock represented an interest in a Western Farm Loan company, which was in fine condition except that it possessed no farms. Western farmers wonder why President Lowell chose to invest in farm land, when so much beautifully engraved in the Grand Central station and the New York federal customs tower is available in the East.

If he really wanted gold bricks, he should have patronized home industries.

BEGINNING YOUNG

Psychologists tell us babies are much smarter than we think. Or, if they are not consciously smart they are recording lasting impressions, almost from birth. Children see things and hear things when they are supposedly too young to understand, and the impressions last all through life. Behavior is affected and life definitely changed for many a child by something that happened to him in the months or years he thinks he has forgotten.

When children are a little older they take in more than we suspect and more than we might wish they did. Lying to children is even worse than lying to grown-ups. Grown-ups expect it and are little impressed. Children are shocked and then changed by a lie.

PATIENCE WITH CHINA

One of the secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. in Shanghai, China, says all China asks from the rest of the world is a little patience. She will right her affairs, take care of herself, become a great power friendly to the rest of the nations. It took France a hundred years to put her house in order. In the meantime she tried more than one form of government. Everything cannot be expected of China in 10 or 15 years.

For one thing and another the world needs a great deal of patience.

A PLACE TO WORK

"A studio in Greenwich Village with arty folks lolling about the floor, talking, doing nothing, cannot compare with Portage as a place to accomplish things."

The speaker was Margery Latimer, and she was talking about the town of Portage, Wisconsin. After giving New York a trial this brilliant young novelist came home to the house of her parents to do some real work. Now she is working on a second novel. Perhaps she arrived at a great truth when she discovers that home is a good place to be, to work, to produce. There is a remote possibility that a change may help you, but the chances are that if you can't do a good job where you are, you won't do a good job anywhere.

SHAKING DICE

It's rather discouraging that so many bad habits should be so old. One would think we would have outgrown many things that are at most as old as history and which we show no signs of outgrowing. It is said dice-throwing was so popular in India centuries ago that two kings, who had unpronounceable names, staked and lost their kingdoms over the spotted cubes.

The Diary of a
New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK — Washington Square on a moonlit night — and a million brown babies playing on the pavement. It's not early in the evening — past eleven o'clock, an hour when most babies, the country over, are tucked away in their trundle beds. But not those of Washington Square, or of the glorified alleys called streets nearby. Midnight comes and the number diminishes somewhat.

But you may walk along any of the thoroughfares near the square on any evening, moonlit or otherwise, until late, and have difficulty in keeping from treading on these little urchins of the streets. There they play and thrive the clock around, in the midst of traffic, and odors, and with the rattling elevated and accompaniment to their childish caroles. Above them their parents lean from windows, or rest stretched on the doorsteps. "And is this not a bad condition for these children?" I asked a welfare worker as we dodged a taxi in crossing street. "Quite the contrary," came the reply. "You may take a group of these children, place them in a home, and you will find that the death rate of these village children is higher than that of almost any other group. They seem to thrive here, or at least, when planted in gentler soil, they are unable to meet the changed conditions as successfully as the other groups." And so a great city prepares its young for the battle of life.

Times Square at theater time — a chaos of lights and jostling crowds, but with now and then an interruption. Here's a break in the crowd, an aisle formed, and all eyes looking down. There on the walk, leading his master by a rope, is a great bulldog. The master, an armless and legless beggar, crawls along behind on his stumps. On the dog's back is a cup for coins and a bundle of pencils. A kind-soul bends down and drops a coin in the cup — then reaches for a pencil. He is rewarded by a snap from the dog and withdraws, embarrassed to the laughter of his friends. The crowd closes behind the beggar and promptly forgets him. But a little farther along Broadway the dog turns and snaps again.

Don't believe just because you read it in books that superstition is a characteristic of the less developed or less civilized peoples. New York is full of superstition. Take in the matter of skyscrapers, for example. Many of them do not have a thirteenth floor, the elevators skipping from 12 to 14. The reason? It's easy. Offices on the thirteenth floor are hard to rent. And so the building owners, to insure themselves full revenue, just forget that there is a No. 13. And this is what is supposed to be the most civilized city of the world.

It all began in Paris. At the Salon of a charming young Englishwoman attached to the British consul, the question of beauty came up for discussion. Madame M. — a white-haired lady, lovely with the serenity and the charm which seems to be found no place else in the world but France, where age is frequently more beautiful than youth, interposed the remark that beauty was not a tangible thing to be defined by an inch and three-quarters nose, or an oval face and round eyes, but an ideal originating in the mind and existing only in the eye of the beholder.

Needless to say, a storm of protest arose from the assembled guests — and when it came my turn to discuss the matter, I was very much embarrassed. You see, my business, my pleasure, in fact almost my whole life had been devoted to beauty, and when I was called upon to voice my feelings on the subject, it was not an opinion I was expected to deliver, but a decision.

"I agree that we create beauty ourselves — but not that it is a vision," I told them. "I agree that what is a modern ideal of loveliness may tomorrow be much less desirable. But I modify that statement by insisting that certain fundamentals have been and will be unchanged, no matter how many thousands of years may pass over this old world. Can you not see?" I asked, "that whether we study Rembrandt or Corot, Frans Hals or the most modern of modern artists, always there are beauty fundamentals repeated?"

"Well, admitting that, and I believe you're right — then nine women out of a possible dozen lose their looks forever by the time they're thirty," responded Deboutante Jeanne.

"Nonsense!" I answered sharply. "Women don't lose their looks forever, they lose them only while they are foolish enough to permit them to remain lost. I tell you, there is scarcely a woman or girl who cannot be lovely with the smallest amount of good sensible care."

"Well, admitting that, and I believe you're right — then nine women out of a possible dozen lose their looks forever by the time they're thirty," responded Deboutante Jeanne.

"Well, if I found you a girl without a single good point to recommend her, do you mean to tell me you could make her presentable?"

"I do," I answered. "I most emphatically do! Besides there is no girl who has not — one, but dozen good points!"

"That's a go. I'll take you up on it if you're game!" declared John, quite serenely unconscious of the fact that in the first place, the challenge was his, and in the second, that no stakes had been named.

To make a long story short, I was to stand the expenses of the experiment, and each of us hazarded one thousand dollars, the loser's sum to be paid to the girl at the end of three months.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The Beginning of an Experiment in Beauty

Eight months ago I lent my aid to one of the most successful experiments of my whole career.

I should never tell you about it were it not for the fact that Mlle. Lady, the heroine, is safely hidden behind her reputation, and even if you should happen to guess her name, you will never be any the wiser as to the accuracy of your suspicions.

It all began in Paris. At the Salon of a charming young Englishwoman attached to the British consul, the question of beauty came up for discussion. Madame M. — a white-haired lady, lovely with the serenity and the charm which seems to be found no place else in the world but France, where age is frequently more beautiful than youth, interposed the remark that beauty was not a tangible thing to be defined by an inch and three-quarters nose, or an oval face and round eyes, but an ideal originating in the mind and existing only in the eye of the beholder.

Two young men of similar abilities had an argument years ago about the advantages of a small city or large one as a place in which to make a fortune.

After 30 years they met the other day and compared notes. They discovered that they had succeeded financially in almost exact proportion to the size of the cities in which they now live. One dwells in Cleveland, a city of about a million inhabitants, and is a millionaire. The other lives in a city of about 60,000, and confessed to having a fortune of only about $75,000. All other factors being the same, opportunities seem to keep pace with population.

These voters cannot be very dependable partisans. If they were, they would have been party-loyal enough to have voted four years ago. They must be sufficiently indifferent to require something beyond the ordinary to jolt them out of their lethargy. This year promises to furnish the jolt, judging from the widespread manifestations of interest.

It may easily, in connection with what the pair say during the remainder of the speaking campaign, settle the outcome. Twenty-six millions, added to the Republican vote of 1924, is not needed by the G. O. P. — except to prevent the Democratic candidate from getting it — but it assuredly would make an impressive total.

The signs are that the outcome depends on the contrasting qualities — the pep and punch and personalities of the rival candidates.

Compare their acceptance speeches — and draw your own conclusion.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Nearly half of this country's eligibles, as voters, failed to cast their ballots four years ago.

Politicians expect to see the bulk of them turn out next November.

Popular interest in 1924's election was at one of the lowest ebbs in American history. This year, from all indications, it perhaps will reach its highest level.

The 1924 total vote cast for president was 29 millions and a few less than 100,000.

The National Get-Out-the-Vote club, with headquarters in Washington, calls this 52.5 per cent of the Americans who were qualified to cast presidential votes in 1924, and puts the same year's stay-at-home vote at 47.5 per cent.

The stay-at-home vote, then, must have been 26 and a quarter millions, plus a few tens of thousands.

In the past the presidential notification ceremonies have been of the most purely perfunctory character.

This year it was evident that the whole country was on the qui vive to hear what the candidates had to say.

This concern was strongly suggestive of a determination on the part of great numbers of voters to make the contrasting speeches the deciding factor as between the opposing tickets.

Now which candidate is to be regarded as having made the most inspiring address — the most courageous and clean-cut — the one best calculated to win the confidence of a wavering electorate?

However, there is some reason to surmise that the odd 26 millions will go, in a pretty solid block, to one or other of this year's two candidates.

These voters cannot be very dependable partisans. If they were, they would have been party-loyal enough to have voted four years ago. They must be sufficiently indifferent to require something beyond the ordinary to jolt them out of their lethargy. This year promises to furnish the jolt, judging from the widespread manifestations of interest.

Living and Loving

How May One Be Charming?

Forget Self. Be Friendly. So many girls write to me asking how they can win boyfriends. Well, I met a very popular girl recently and think possibly my correspondents can take a hint from her. She was not pretty. But she was friendly and interested in the people she met. If a boy took her out she had a good time and said so. She did not think it necessary to snub her boy friends to keep them from thinking she was crazy about them. I heard one young girl say how seldom one met a girl like her. I think that her charm lay largely in forgetting herself and thinking about the other fellow — how what she said was going to affect him. Men don't like to be snubbed any more than women, but how often women, think that a snappy comeback is more important than a few words of kindly appreciation.

If a boy wrote to me, "Wonderful," a perfectly friendly, unsolicited letter, and I answered it in kind, I should expect an answer. I am sure, in view of the fact that he had mentioned other girls who had written him, I would not write again. It was perfectly proper to answer his letter, however.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 17 and in love with a man who is 20 years my senior. He is a widower and has two children. One night he walked home with me and kissed me goodbye and my mother saw him. Now, I don't see anything wrong in bidding him good night, but she thought it was terrible and has told me I never to see or speak to him again. That was two weeks ago. I feel as though I would die if I couldn't be

INDEPENDENT GRID TEAM ORGANIZED TO REPRESENT LANGS

Organization of an independent football team for Xenia was practically completed at a meeting of interested candidates at the Lang Chevrolet Co. sales room, E. Main St., Tuesday night.

This auto agency will back the team, it is announced. The eleven will be known as the "Lang Chevrolets."

The opening practice session will be held at Washington Park Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. All Xenia football men and particularly ex-high school boys are urged to attend the workout.

Only about twelve potential candidates attended the Tuesday night meeting to discuss plans for the coming season, but those sponsoring the team say that more than twenty prospective players have been interested in formation of the team.

Paul Halder, veteran lineman, has been obtained to coach the team.

No date has been set for the opening of the season but the first game will probably be played September 20. Games will be played only on Sundays. It has not been definitely decided where the contests will be held.

HEAT HOLIDAYS

Prevailing high temperature is the least of the worries of pupils of St. Brigid Parochial school.

Because of the heat, the children were dismissed at noon for the day on both Tuesday and Wednesday. These half-holidays will be continued, at least the remainder of this week, or until the weather becomes cooler.

The Parochial school enrollment for the fall term is announced as 165, a slight decrease from last year.

THERE is nothing that has ever taken the place of Bayer Aspirin as an antidote for pain. Safe, or physicians wouldn't use it, and endorse its use by others. Sure, or several million users would have turned to something else. But get real Bayer Aspirin (at any drugstore) with Bayer on the box, and the word genuine printed in red:

DURNBAUGH SETS PACE FOR EVEN GREAT RAJAH HORNSBY AT BAT

Staging a batting spate last Sunday, Durnbaugh, leading Reserve bitter, made three hits, one-third of the total number his team gained off three Dayton Police pitchers, and raised his season's average to the lofty figure of .395. Barlow, his closest rival for batting honors, trails him by thirty-seven percentage points.

The team batting average slumped from .324 to .319, a decrease of five points.

Conley is leading the team in runs scored with twenty-eight. Durnbaugh has made the most hits, thirty-four, leads in stolen bases with ten in triples with four and in home runs with six, thus having a monopoly on individual honors. Barlow is credited with the most sacrifice hits, six, and the most doubles with nine. Batting records follow:

CONSTITUTION FOR CLEARING HOUSE IS NOW TO BE RATIFIED

A constitution for the newly-organized Xenia Civic Clearing House, adopted by its Council at a recent meeting, is to be presented to the various member clubs of the city for ratification.

The clearing house was formed, according to its constitution, since in view of the need in Xenia for some city-wide federation of community activities, it has become essential to have some organized body which would consider and act for the various individual clubs in the city to determine, after investigation, the merit of any city-wide appeal and present it as a certified movement worthy of consideration by the individual clubs, to clear the city of spasmodic efforts of any sort unworthy of community appeal, and to foster such movements which make for community betterment.

The various civic clubs of Xenia have combined in forming such an organization having as its purpose, to federate the various civic organizations for the specific duty of co-ordinating community activities.

Its object is to facilitate community action on city-wide problems and certify any movement for concerted effort by all the clubs; to prevent, if possible, overlapping of activities and to assign particular community problems to some organization for solution, or recommend federated effort.

house is confined to all civic organizations in Xenia having a city-wide representation and held, being civic in purpose and having as a principle, service.

The Civic Clearing House is directed by a Council made up of ex-officio the president and secretary of each organization joining the clearing house.

The Council, however, cannot involve any club in a federated activity as a club without the consent of the president of the club or governing directorate of the club.

The Council reserves the right to project and recommended civic activity without club involvement, but calling on all citizens to respond, and may assign, as a recommendation civic work to individual clubs, the carrying out of a project being dependent upon the

INJUNCTIONS AGAINST PEACEFUL UNIONIZATION OF LABOR OPPOSED

By ROBERT F. WAGNER
U. S. Senator From New York

(Robert F. Wagner was born in Germany. He was graduated from the New York College and was admitted to the bar in 1888. Wagner practiced law in New York City for some years. He became a member of the New York assembly, which post he held from 1905 to 1908 and later became a member of the state senate. He has been elected Justice of the Supreme Court of the first district of New York for the term which expires in 1932, but resigned to enter the U. S. senate from New York in 1926.)

I do not agree with those who see dark clouds ahead on the horizon of the American labor movement. On the contrary, I prophesy the increasing importance of organized labor in this country. I am convinced that trade unionism is bound to acquire a far better share in determining the economic policies of industry. The time has arrived for labor to contribute to the framing of economic policy and to assume responsibility, with the employer, for its successful application.

Necessarily the whole present relationship of organized labor to industry must change. Instead of a tug-of-war we shall have a joint venture, instead of conflict we shall have co-operation.

In place of the old relation of master and servant the new day demands a partnership between corporate industry and organized labor. You may say this is a utopian dream. I think it is real. I see only two major obstacles to its realization — obstacles which can be overcome. The first is the labor injunction. One does not require a diploma from the school of prophecy to see that in the long run the injunction cannot stop the organization of labor. Organization springs from the most profound needs of human nature. You can't destroy the desire to organize; you can only balk it for a time.

But just as surely as mankind has been marching slowly but irresistibly toward the goal of political democracy, just as surely and just as irresistibly are the workers going ahead to win for themselves greater rights in business and industry.

What is the effect of the injunction? I am still looking at it from the point of view of the employer. Its effect is just to postpone the formation of an adequate labor organization. It is keeping the labor movement in its fighting period; it is preventing the movement from coming to full maturity and assuming the tasks and responsibilities for which it is pre-eminently fitted.

Co-operation is a hollow word as long as the threat of the injunction hangs over lawful unionization. The lamb and the lion can never co-operate. The lamb may be docile or the lion generous but co-operation is given only to equals. To match the huge aggregates of modern capital the wage-earner must be organized before he is ready to give co-operation to his employer.

See this special ESSEX chassis display
and the costly car way it is built

The most important part of your car—is the part you never see!

But now we are especially displaying an Essex chassis to show the costly, fine-quality way it is built.

If you could place it—first, beside a $3,000 make of chassis—and then beside a chassis in the Essex price range—you would have dramatic, visual proof of the fine-car Essex construction, as distinguished from the practice of cars in its price field.

You would find the same steering wheel of hard rubber and steel core in Essex and the $3,000 car. You would find the same Timken tapered wheel bearings, the same roller tappet bearings, the same use of five cross members in the rigid frame. Cars of Essex price class usually economize with mushroom tappet bearings, ordinary roller bearings in the wheel, and three cross members in the frame.

Aside from such self-evident superiorities as its brilliant performance, beauty and quality that you can see and feel in the very upholstery, the wheel you handle and the hardware you touch—please compare with any car—the advantages we have itemized here because they speak for the complete quality way in which the new Essex Super-Six is built—things seen or unseen

EUGENICS MOTHER

Actress Says Marriage Is An Injustice To Child.

Kate Pullman and her eugenics baby.

By IONE QUINBY
Staff Writer for Central Press and
The Gazette

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 13.—Marriage with its constant bickerings, its crushing of individualities and its inevitable showdown, tends to wrap a child's life. A baby born to an unwed mother stands a far better chance of getting a healthy, happy start in life than one that opens its eyes in a home sanctified by law but warped by marital friction.

This belief, as much as her desire to bear a perfect baby, led

Kate Pullman, vaudeville actress, to decide to give birth to a baby without the benefit of clergy. A quarrelling, unhappy home is a cruel injustice to an innocent child, according to the actress, who declared in her room in the hospital where she lies with her baby, that nine homes out of ten become loveless in a few months or years.

Other famous eugenic babies to make the headlines recently are those born to Sylvia Pankhurst, the suffragist, and Mrs. Gladys Burnham, of New York.

"There is no reason in the world

why a woman should not have a baby if she wants it, even though she is not married," the mother of the new eugenic baby declares. "Every normal woman wants a baby. And every normal woman knows that marriage doesn't remain happy, because love never lasts in all its first intensity. I tried marriage once with a man named Edward Smith. It was a great disillusionment. My observations since have been that most married couples stay together for the sake of appearance or for economical reasons. A child is better off in a home where two human beings aren't tied together."

Miss Pullman admits that William Diner, of Cincinnati, is the father of her baby and declares that she searched the world over before she found the type of man she wanted to be her child's father.

"I wanted a perfect baby, but I also wanted one whose life would not be spoiled by marital disagreements," she continued. "Finally in Cincinnati I met the man my mind had pictured. He is six feet, two inches, black haired, dark eyed, robust and handsome. I told him frankly of my desire for a baby and stipulated only that the baby was to be entirely mine. He agreed to go through with the plans. We saw experts in eugenics. We took blood tests, mental tests, tests of physique. The experts declared we were perfect physical mates.

"I came to the hospital here finally and the baby, a boy, was born and weighed eleven pounds, five and three-quarters ounces. My baby will be given every care that devotion can give him. My ambition is for him to be a great athlete. His father is a tall man and I'm sure my baby will be fine and healthy."

Mary Melkie announces the opening of her studio at 224 E. Second St.

The Blue and White squad is comprised of thirty-seven candidates instead of thirty-six. Ralph Scurry, one of the veteran linemen back from last year, is seeking a regular end position on the team. He is a senior and tips the scales at 170 pounds.

HOLLYWOOD HONORS YOUNG ARTIST

TRUTH COSTS HIM FREEDOM

Will McKenzie

By MATT WEINSTOCK
Staff Writer for Central Press and Gazette

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 13.—But for his inborn sense of honesty, Will McKenzie, mountaineer and convicted murderer, would not have imprisonment for the rest of his life. He was held, in the Los Angeles county jail, awaiting his return to the North Carolina state prison, after eleven years of stolen liberty.

But McKenzie thought it proper to tell his wife after two children were born to them that he had escaped from prison where he was serving a life term for murder.

In his cell McKenzie admitted that his young wife had repeated the story to police and told them where to find him. The chubby mountaineer, who was convicted of killing his brother-in-law sixteen years ago, was arrested on his ranch in San Fernando, a suburb of Los Angeles.

Bears No Malice

"I wondered why Eva did it," he sighed. "It was that last quarrel. All she wanted was a divorce. She's sendin' me back to cell for life so she can have it."

But there seems no hatred in the self-confessed murderer's makeup. He killed his brother-in-law, Peter B. Jones, shortly after the death of McKenzie's first wife in Laurinburg, N. C.

"I just had to do it," the soft-spoken mountaineer apologized. "He started gossip about me and how I didn't grieve like I should after Mamie died. I stood it for a while and then he called me up into the mountains to have it out."

"They sent me to prison at Raleigh, May 22, 1917, and three days later I went to the road camp. I figured I had it comin' to me, so I took my own leave the same month and headed west."

"I took up with Eva Parkhill and married her in Wichita Falls, Tex., on March 25, 1920. She was young, eighteen years younger than I was, but she reminded me a lot of Mamie—and I loved her, too. We came out to San Fernando three years ago, me workin' at my carper trade."

Twice after he had married Eva Parkhill he faced capture when he returned to his dying father's bed in Laurinburg. His friends refused to report his presence to authorities.

McKenzie bears no grudge against his wife. His greatest concern, in fact, is for her happiness, and the welfare of the children, Audrey Dean, age eight, and two-year-old Roberta Irene.

Had she really been the notorious Janet James of the "Blue Laws of 1928"? She? The girl who sat there sewing those little gray trousers and watching the sturdy, beautiful boy who played around her feet.

How sad it was that his own mother could not see him now. Poor Della. That, too, seemed like a phantom dream—an unreality. Sometimes Janet wondered if the world we live in were just a myth, anyway. Looking back on all her experiences, it did not seem possible it could be real.

Was she happy? Her eyes clouded when she asked herself that question. Perhaps not happy

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—What will the well-dressed movie wear next? The Hollywood producer who can guess next season's picture styles needn't worry about where his breakfast is coming from.

Pictures run in certain definite lines, half a dozen flying pictures just as uniformly as women's Easter hats. Call them cycles, if you want to be important. The successful novelty immediately becomes a pattern upon which many others are modeled.

Most recently the style has run to crime and Russia. "Underworld", which raised George Bancroft to stardom, was perhaps the first film sincerely to deal with the brutality and sentiment which lie below the law-abiding surface of big city civilization. It was one of the smashing successes of last

After all these months of expectation, I have at length seen "The Wedding March," Erich von Stroheim's spectacular novel of high society in brilliant imperial old Vienna. It's to be released this fall by Paramount.

I think it is one picture which amply justifies the superlative "Great". And the use of "novel" to describe it was intentional. There is a deliberate building up of backgrounds and character, a cumulative effect about the climax, which suggests the methods of the novelist rather than of the movies.

Most recently the style has run to crime and Russia. "Underworld", which raised George Bancroft to stardom, was perhaps the first film sincerely to deal with the brutality and sentiment which lie below the law-abiding surface of big city civilization. It was one of the smashing successes of last

HAD NO SLEEP;
STRENGTH FAILED;
KONJOLA CONQUERS

Xenia Resident Restored From State of Misery to Buoyant Health by Wonderful New Medicine.

Not only as a health restorative but a builder-up of the entire system, Konjola is making a wonderful record in Xenia and vicinity just as this wonder medicine does wherever introduced. At the Galaher Drug Store, 33 East Main Street, Xenia, as related his experience to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

Mr. Haynes attained a complete restoration to health after a very brief treatment with Konjola, and to say that he is delighted with the results is putting it mildly. Mr. Haynes said:

"Several years ago my stomach began to give me trouble. I thought the attack was a passing one, but it stayed with me and grew constantly worse. I tried several doctors and many remedies, but nothing made any headway against the indigestion. However light my diet, the stomach refused to function properly, and I suffered intensely from gas and bloating. That was bad enough, but my strength failed rapidly. I could not sleep at nights, and was fit only to lie around the house. My kidneys became affected, and many times every night had to get up. Dizzy spells added to my misery, and I was about to despair of ever finding anything to help me."

"Recently I read in The Gazette the experience a friend of mine had with Konjola, and I figured that if it helped him—I knew how sick he had been—it might help me. Well, the result exceeded my fondest expectations. From the very start of the treatment I felt better, and after a few bottles I was my normal self again. No more indigestion, no more sleepless nights, no more pains, dizzy spells, gas nor bloating. I can eat as I did years ago, before I had my first attack of indigestion. There is no medicine in the world to compare to Konjola."

Back of every bottle of Konjola stands a record of thousands of such happy experiences in new health. Konjola does not promise—it performs; this new medicine's greatest recommendation is its history of results, not claims. Those who suffer may take hope; thousands call Konjola a Godsend—a balm, a blessing—the greatest medicine in the world."

The Konjola Man is at the Galaher Drug Store, 33 East Main Street, Xenia, where he is meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this

Editor of The Gazette:

Among the many pleasant incidents in connection with the recent home-coming none were more enjoyable to me than the calls from "Mollie Brown." Mr. Hoover asked when visiting his old home in 1923, "Why, to be sure I remember Mollie Brown! That was a case of real love I had for her." One was from Mr. H. M. Richardson of Cincinnati. Upon his return home he sent me a Boston paper with a specially marked column and as I take it for granted he stands up for Hoover as president and teachers generally, I send it to you for publication.

Mrs. E. Hyslop Carruthers, WEST BRANCH, Ia.—Teachers everywhere, who have found their greatest reward in service, find gratification over the expression of appreciation for their work made by Herbert Hoover when he acknowledged, at his reception here, the debt of gratitude he owed to the school teacher of his early youth.

"There is present today," he said, "a lady who was for years my teacher in your public school. She embodies the spirit of that vast body of women who not only teach and inspire our children but watch over their wider destinies. You have come to do me courtesy as a son of Iowa. I take this occasion to acknowledge my debt to that lady, Mrs. Carran."

Some 44 years ago, in the Little grade school at West Branch, "Bertie" Hoover, a boy of 8 years, was absorbing the fundamentals of his education under the tutelage of Mollie Brown (now Mrs. J. K. Carran). He has gone far since then, but it is typical of the man that he has not forgotten the sympathetic and understanding touch that had much to do with directing the thought of the lad he was into proper channels, and it is likewise typical that in making his gesture of gratitude to Mrs. Carran he should include teachers of her caliber throughout the country.

"Mollie Brown?" Mr. Hoover said when visiting his old home in 1923. "Why, to be sure I remember Mollie Brown! That was a case of real love I had for her."

At another time he referred to her as his "sweet faced, patient teacher," and today as she sits in her pleasant living room recalling the day when "Bertie" was a lad bounding Iowa on the north, east, south and west, singsonging six times six are thirty-six, she has but to glance to her wall to see the likeness of the man that boy became. And inscribed on that framed picture are these words: "With kindest regards to Mrs. J. K. Carran."

Mollie Brown had performed her part in shaping that man's character and Herbert Hoover had not forgotten.

"It was in 1884 and 1885 that he was in my fourth grade," Mrs. Carran explained. "He would have been in the third but he was so industrious that we had to advance him. There were 36 other pupils in the class but none of them compared with 'Bertie.' 'Bertie' was a good boy and I never had to scold him. He was bright, quiet and good at arithmetic. I can see him as he looked in vest and bloomers. He was rather short and plump and had a freckled face. He was good in school programs, but quite retiring. But he was always up and doing if I wanted him for anything. And he always kept still when he had nothing to say."

Gratitude to Teachers

In looking over the men who have achieved the highest place in the gift of the United States it is remarkable how many of them are able to trace the beginnings of their education back to some earnest man or woman, laboring in obscurity in some little drab schoolhouse setting on the edge of a county highway. Men like Jackson, Van Buren, Polk, Fillmore, Lincoln, Grant, Garfield and Calvin Coolidge, acknowledged their debt of gratitude to teachers otherwise unsung, and not the least significant gestures of Herbert Hoover was his frank pleasure in meeting Mrs. Carran.

"Gratitude," Mrs. Carran said not long ago, "is one of Herbert Hoover's strong traits. I feel more than repaid for all the trouble I ever took with him just to know that, he should have remembered me through all these years."

In that remark, perhaps, Mrs. Carran has made the fitting reply of "that vast body of women" to whom Mr. Hoover referred in his speech.

TANKER CONVERTED INTO BLAZING PYRE

Thirty Rescued But One Dies Later; Crew Deserts
Ship In Lifeboats And Picked Up
By Steamer.

SOUTHPORT, N. C., Sept. 13.—The coast guard cutter Modoc today sought the 7,000-ton tanker Shreveport, converted from an explosion yesterday into a blazing pyre with four bodies aboard.

Thirty others of the crew were rescued, but one man died later. Four others were treated at hospital here.

While the Modoc hunted the flaming ship, reported to be a menace to shipping 125 miles off shore here, the twenty-nine survivors described the accident.

Captain S. A. Simmons, of Baltimore, said the tanker was proceeding empty from Philadelphia to Texas. Suddenly the decks bulged; there was a great flash, then an explosion, and wreckage began falling about the now burning steamer.

Chief Officer Berman, David M. Dargaro, Sweg Person and a seaman whose name was not known were killed outright. Second Mate Harold Hopkins was fatally injured. Four others had minor hurts.

Captain Simmons ordered the crew into lifeboats. Nine seamen, imprisoned below decks, were pulled through the narrow port-holes into the boats.

For an hour the men drifted and rowed. Then the steamer Aldecoa hove into sight and took them aboard. Hopkins died as the Aldecoa reached this harbor.

HOOVER MAY SPEAK IN OHIO LEARNED AT CHICAGO MEET

Curtis Will Seek Twice In State Is Announced

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 13.—Herbert Hoover may make one speech in Ohio, possibly at Cleveland, during the fall campaign, according to Charles D. Simeral, Steubenville, following a conference at Chicago with representatives of the Republican national committee. Simeral is chairman of the speakers' bureau at Ohio Republican headquarters.

The tentative plans for the national campaign did not include an Ohio appearance. Simeral said, but it was found that the presidential nominee will cross the state near the end of the campaign and that he may have time to deliver one speech.

Definite plans will be made in the near future, according to Simeral.

Charles Curtis, vice-presidential nominee, will make two speeches in Ohio, one probably at Columbus and the other either at Toledo, Cincinnati or Cleveland. Senator Borah, of Idaho, will probably make one speech in the state, and several other national speakers are to be slated for Ohio later in the campaign.

Myers Y. Cooper, gubernatorial nominee, and other Republican candidates for state offices are to meet here tomorrow with women campaign workers, county chairmen, and state central committee women, according to announcement by Mrs. Wilma Sinclair Le Van, former national committee woman, now in charge of the campaign work among Ohio women.

Cooper, Mrs. Le Van and Campaign Worker Harry D. Silver are scheduled to address the women workers.

PASSENGERS ARE SHAKEN IN WRECK

DETROIT, Sept. 13.—The "Red Arrow," crack Pennsylvania train from New York, crashed today in an open switch at the suburban town of Lincoln Park and collided with two freight cars on a siding.

The passengers on the all-steel coaches were shaken up considerably, and the engine was damaged when it overturned, but no one was injured severely enough to be taken to a hospital. The train left New York at 3:20 p. m. yesterday.

Hosts at the meeting will be bankers from Hamilton, Oxford, Seven Mile, Somerville, Trenton and Okeana.

GANGSTERS INVADE HOSPITAL TO RESCUE TWO PRISONERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Gangsters invaded a hospital today to rescue two of their members, who were held in the prison ward, killed a patrolman but were repelled by nurses and internes and had to flee without rescuing the two prisoners.

It was the most daring underworld move since the present gang war started in New York.

All of the gangsters were heavily armed, carrying either pistols or sawed-off shot guns, and fired numerous shots as they rushed through the doors of the hospital.

Patrolman Jeremiah C. Brosnan had been assigned to guard two prisoners confined by injuries in the hospital ward at Fordham Hospital.

It was the most daring underworld move since the present gang war started in New York.

SEVEN PEOPLE KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

GARY, Ind., Sept. 13.—Seven persons were killed when a Grand Trunk freight train crashed into a tourist automobile near here early today. An eighth occupant of the automobile, a 7-year-old boy, was injured fatally.

According to identification found on the bodies, the dead were believed to be D. S. Pollock, 59, Lillington, Mo.; Howard Smith, 38, Dearborn, Mich.; C. C. Mainord, 35, his wife, Mrs. Anna Jones, 23, a baby boy about 20 months old and a baby girl. All of the victims except Pollock and Smith were believed to be from Matthews, Mo.

The party was driving into Gary when the accident occurred. The train demolished the car and ran on for more than a quarter of a mile before it could be brought to a stop.

The contents of a letter found on the body of Mrs. Jones indicated the tourists were enroute to Flint, Mich.

MACKAY FORGIVES WHISPER CAMPAIGN LEADS GOVERNOR TO ISSUE REFUTATION

Obtains Evidence To Deny 'Charges' Of Syracuse Woman

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Friends of Governor Alfred E. Smith believed today that he had effectively scotched all gossip to the effect that he is a drunkard.

Charges of drunkenness are nothing new in the life of the Democratic presidential candidate. Probably because he favors modification of the prohibition laws he has had to deal with "whispering campaign" about his personal habits in virtually every election campaign he has conducted.

Few persons believed however that he would come out as boldly as he did today with a long signed statement in which he took official cognizance of the so-called "whispering slander."

Smith's statement was captioned "Nailing a Lie in the Whispering Campaign."

The statement dealt with letter Mrs. H. D. Sanford of Syracuse is said to have written to a Mrs. William L. Bauer, of Parkersburg, W. Va., which caused comment at a card party in the West Virginia city that Governor Smith was so intoxicated at the state fair at Syracuse, N. Y., that he had to be assisted to rise when he made a speech.

The governor's statement told how he had heard of the letter from William H. Kelley, Democratic leader in Syracuse, and how State Senator Fearon, a Republican who was on the reception committee when the governor visited the state fair, had written denying the charges.

Fearon's statement said that the governor made no speech from the box at the races, as the latter is purported to have charged, and that the governor gave no indication of having had a drink.

The governor made two speeches at Syracuse, Fearon said, and at neither was there necessity of assisting him.

The statement added that Kelley had made a report on a conversation he had with Mrs. Sanford in which she admitted writing a letter to Mrs. Bauer, admitted her opposition to Governor Smith because of his prohibition views, but denied charging the governor was intoxicated or denied having seen the governor at the races.

The governor said he had urged Kelley to get a statement from Mrs. Sanford and that she had promised to write one, but that the statement never was forthcoming.

An attempt to get a copy of the letter from Mrs. Bauer failed.

WOMAN INJURED IN EXPLOSION OF GAS

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 13.—One woman was injured another was knocked from her feet, and several others narrowly escaped injury in two explosions here last night.

Mrs. James Cooper, 21, was burned seriously when gas exploded in her home.

Miss Josephine Scott, 21, was knocked from her feet and fainted when an explosion at a sandwich shop shattered a large plate window and rocked the surrounding neighborhood.

The former heavyweight champion is at present visiting in France while his fiancee, Miss Mary Josephine Lauder still is in the United States.

It was reported she had planned a European visit shortly, but rumors of a continental marriage between the two never could be confirmed.

BUTLER TO SUPPORT HOOVER; STILL WET

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, chief of the Republican party's prohibition plank, will support Herbert Hoover for president, but he will not take back any of the things he said against Hoover and the party.

That was revealed today by H. Edmund Machold, Republican state chairman after a conference with Butler and was hailed with joy by Republican leaders who admitted they were afraid Butler would bolt in the presidential election.

Communication with the section was still maintained, the company said.

REPORT HURRICANE NEAR GUADELOUPE

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The French Cable Company said today it had information of a terrific hurricane raging in the West Indies, particularly in the vicinity of Guadeloupe, a French colony in the French West Indies.

Prize Of $12,500 Is Awaiting Winner; Favor Haldeman

By UNITED PRESS

Through the gray of early morning, six airplanes were believed racing at more than 100 miles an hour toward the $12,500 prize that awaits the winner of the trans-continental nonstop air race.

The six roared away from Roosevelt Field, L. I., at varying times yesterday, their motors pulling steadily and noisily against the heavy loads of fuel the planes carried.

Few reports have come through the night of the progress of this race—over a course that only twice before has been conquered—mainly because each pilot was permitted to choose any route he desired.

The Columbus, O., airport reported a large plane passed over there shortly after 8 p. m., but there was no way of telling whether it was one of the trans-continental air racers.

The six planes still believed in the air.

Buhl Airsedan, piloted by Nick Naier, which left Roosevelt Field at 1:10:52 p. m., Wednesday.

Bellanca, piloted by George Haldeman, which left at 4:35:35 p. m.

Bellanca, piloted by Lt. Jack Iseman, which left at 5:57 p. m.

Lockheed-Vega, piloted by Col. Art Goebel, which left at 7:30:10 p. m.

Lockheed-Vega, piloted by Col. T. Morris, which left at 7:58:20 p. m.

Three of the racing machines failed in their attempt to race across the continent in record time. Cliff McMillin, piloting a Stinson, left at 11:34:10 a. m.—the first pilot away—and was forced down in the mountains near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., with a broken cam shaft.

The Bellanca monoplane "North Star," property of Mrs. James A. Stillman, left at 2:22:59 p. m., and about two hours later its pilot Oliver C. Lebouillier took the plane back to Roosevelt Field.

Randolph Page, flying alone, started from Roosevelt Field at 4:15:30 p. m. in a Stinson Junior and a few hours later was reported down at Allentown, Pa.

Goebel was the favorite. Just a few weeks ago in the same Lockheed-Vega in the same race, he was using today, the western flyer raced from Los Angeles to New York in slightly less than nineteen hours. Goebel reported he had found a new and more direct course.

Since that race Goebel has been busily preparing his craft for this trans-continental attempt and only recently said tests had indicated his machine could maintain speed of better than 135 miles an hour.

He was one of the last starters and had a twelve hours siege of night flying over the eastern territory, of which he is not greatly familiar, but before leaving said he had no worry.

BUY-AT-HOME PLAN BEING URGED HERE BY STORE MANAGER

"One of the greatest movements in local success is the buy-at-home movement which has gradually been gaining impetus during the past few years," says Purl E. Cox, manager of the J. C. Penney Co. store in this city.

"It is the keynote to a successful city or town, the expression of confidence in the town and its ability to meet the competition of the rest of the United States."

"The buy-at-home movement is a co-operative one, requiring the interested help of the local merchant, the local residents and the local newspapers and other factors in publicity."

"If the townspeople show confidence in the local merchant, he can, in turn, repay their confidence by carrying a line of merchandise which will give them a range of selection and a standard of value which will equal that to be found in any city or town within trading radius."

"The local merchant owes it to the townspeople to tell them what he has in stock and what values he is able to offer. Here is where the local newspaper becomes the means of communication between the merchant and the customer."

"With modern methods of transportation, with modern buying facilities, with modern roads and conveniences, the local store in a city or town is never more than a few hours away from the very latest in materials, styles and values."

"The metropolitan city with millions of people, or the average city or town with 2,500 or 25,000 people can be served equally well and to the same advantage by the manufacturers, producers and dealers."

"The automobile has shown this to be true. More and more the live merchant in other lines is coming to the customer first."

"The customer reads the local newspaper, sees that right at his

Are You Ready?

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug. Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot put away. And it's always ready for the crueler pains of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

COUNTY AGENT KIMBER RESIGNS TO MANAGE J.D. STEELE FARMS

J. R. Kimber, county agent of the Greene County Farm Bureau for the last three years, submitted his resignation to the directors at a meeting last Friday. It is disclosed.

The resignation will become effective October 1 when Mr. Kimber will take over active management of three farms in Greene County owned by J. D. Steele, this city, former president of The Hoover and Allison Co.

In managing these farms and supervising an agricultural work, Mr. Kimber will succeed William Priest, who has had charge of this work for the last thirty-six years.

The farms have a combined acreage of 1,390 and are located at Trebeens, Old Town and on the Cincinnati Pike.

The directors of the Farm Bureau, it is announced, are taking steps for the appointment of a successor to Mr. Kimber.

Mr. Kimber was formerly service manager of the Alien County Farm Bureau, with headquarters at Lima, O., and was employed as county agent here November 19, 1925, succeeding Ford S. Prince, resigned. He took up the local extension work December 1 of that year.

He worked six months in Allen County with the county agent there and helped build up the department to a paying proposition. He was also particularly successful in reviving shipping organizations and co-operative marketing work and assisted in the same work here.

The misunderstanding did not involve wages, according to the superintendent, who announced that a conference was being held with employees Thursday afternoon.

At this session it was confidently expected that all difficulties would be straightened out and an amicable agreement reached, he said.

The output of the plant is confined to shoes for women.

Millions of families are now using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pep, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pep is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or use this free coupon.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world.

The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR WHOLE DUTY—Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man.—Ecc. 12:13.

NEW HOPE FOR MEXICO

There is real hope for the future of Mexico if every one, people and politicians alike, will take deeply to heart and constantly remember the words spoken, apparently with great feeling, by President Calles at the opening of the thirty-third Mexican congress in Mexico City a few days ago.

"To the whole Mexican family," he said, "the opportunity has come to make a decided and final effort to pass from the category of a people and government of a dictator to the higher, more dignified, more useful and more civilized conditions of a nation of institutions and laws."

But of more immediate importance than this abstract adjuration was this positive declaration by the outgoing president of the Mexican republic: "I want to state neither in the period following the provisional term nor at any other time shall I aspire to the presidency of my country. My resolution constitutes a positive and unchangeable fact, that never for any reason or under any circumstances shall I return to the Presidency of the republic."

No such promise as this was ever before made to the congress or the people of Mexico; or if any like it ever was made it was not kept. In a speech before the congress in the fall of 1913, Victoriano Huerta, then president, made use of the famous words of Napoleon—"The law is not violated if the country be saved." This easy flirting with the law for the sake of expediency has long been the habit of Mexico's rulers. It is good to hear that the practice is to stop.

President Calles, at any rate, cannot afford, after this definite declaration, to go back upon his word, and the other statesmen in Mexico will do well to follow his example. President Calles has made, besides, the same suggestion to his people that they refrain from electing military men to the presidency.

Mexico is sick of war and of bloodshed. In the less than 20 years since the close of the long and peaceful reign of Porfirio Diaz, violence and death have shadowed the men who followed him in that high office. Madero, Carranza and Obregon were assassinated. Huerta, who was deposed, managed to get out of the country, and later died in his bed.

TEACHING A UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard University, recently invested a little nest egg of some $70,000 in beautifully engraved stock, wakes up to find the cash gone and now sits alone with his memories.

The stock represented an interest in a Western Farm Loan company, which was in fine condition except that it possessed no farms. Western farmers wonder why President Lowell chose to invest in farm land, when so much beautifully engraved in the Grand Central station and the New York federal customs tower is available in the East.

If he really wanted gold bricks, he should have patronized home industries.

BEGINNING YOUNG

Psychologists tell us babies are much smarter than we think. Or, if they are not consciously smart they are recording lasting impressions, almost from birth. Children see things and hear things when they are supposedly too young to understand, and the impressions last all through life. Behavior is affected and life definitely changed for many a child by something that happened to him in the months or years he thinks he has forgotten.

When children are a little older they take in more than we suspect and more than we might wish they did. Lying to children is even worse than lying to grown-ups. Grown-ups expect it and are little impressed. Children are shocked and then changed by a lie.

PATIENCE WITH CHINA

One of the secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. in Shanghai, China, says all China asks from the rest of the world is a little patience. She will right her affairs, take care of herself, become a great power friendly to the rest of the nations. It took France a hundred years to put her house in order. In the meantime she tried more than one form of government. Everything cannot be expected of China in 10 or 15 years.

For one thing and another the world needs a great deal of patience.

A PLACE TO WORK

"A studio in Greenwich Village with arty folks lolling about the floor, talking, talking, doing nothing, cannot compare with Portage as a place to accomplish things."

The speaker was Margery Latimer, and she was talking about the town of Portage, Wisconsin. After giving New York a trial this brilliant young novelist came home to the house of her parents to do some real work. Now she is working on a second novel. Perhaps she arrived at a great truth when she discovers that home is a good place to be, to work, to produce. There is a remote possibility that a change may help you, but the chances are that if you can't do a good job where you are, you won't do a good job anywhere.

SHAKING DICE

It's rather discouraging that so many bad habits should be so old. One would think we would have outgrown many things that are almost as old as history and which we show no signs of outgrowing. It is said dice-throwing was so popular in India centuries ago that two kings, who had unpronounceable names, staked and lost their kingdoms on the spotted cubes.

As far back as history goes there has been too much of some thing or other of which there is still too much.

The Diary of a New Yorker
By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK — Washington Square on a moonlit night — and a million brown babies playing on the pavement. It's not early in the evening — past eleven o'clock, an hour when most babies, the country over, are tucked away in their trundle beds. But not those of Washington Square, or of the glorified alleys called streets nearby. Mid-night comes and the number diminishes somewhat.

But you may walk along any of the thoroughfares near the square on any evening, moonlit or otherwise, until late, and have difficulty in keeping from treading on these little urchins of the streets. There they play and thrive the clock around, in the midst of traffic, and odors, and with the rattling elevated and accompaniment to their chitterries. Above them their parents lean from windows, or rest stretched on the doorsteps.

"And is this not a bad condition for these children?" I asked a welfare worker as we dodged a taxi in crossing a street. "Quite the contrary," came the reply.

"You may take a group of these children, place them in a home, and you will find that the death rate of these village children is higher than that of almost any other group. They seem to thrive here, or at least, when planted in gentler soil, they are unable to meet the changed conditions as successfully as the other groups." And so a great city prepares its young for the battle of life.

Times Square at theater time — a chaos of lights and jostling crowds, but with now and then an interruption. Here's a break in the crowd, an aisle formed, and all eyes looking down. There on the walk, leading his master by a rope, is a great bulldog. The master, an armless and legless beggar, crawls along behind on his stumps. On the dog's back is a cup for coins and a bundle of pencils. A kind soul bends down and drops a coin in the cup — then reaches for a pencil. He is rewarded by a snap from the dog and withdraws, embarrassed to the laughter of his friends. The crowd closes behind the beggar and promptly forgets him. But a little farther along Broadway the dog turns and snaps again.

Don't believe just because you read it in books that superstition is a characteristic of the less developed or less civilized peoples. New York is full of superstition. Take in the matter of skyscrapers, for example. Many of them do not have a thirteenth floor, the elevators skipping from 12 to 14. The reason? It's easy. Offices on the thirteenth floor are hard to rent. And so the building owners, to insure themselves full revenue, just forget that there is a No. 13. And this is what is supposed to be the most civil- ized city of the world.

Eight months ago I lent my aid to one of the most successful experiments of my whole career. I should never tell you about it were it not for the fact that Mildred, the heroine, is suddenly hidden behind her reputation, and even if you should happen to guess her name, you will never be any the wiser as to the accuracy of your suspicions.

It all began in Paris. At the Salon of a charming young Englishwoman attached to the British consul, the question of beau- 10

tiful women came up for discussion. Mademoiselle M., a white-haired lady, lovely with the serenity and the charm which seems to be found no place else in the world, but France, where age is frequently more beautiful than youth, interposed the remark that beauty was not a tangible thing to be defined by an inch and three-quarters nose, or an oval face and round eyes, but an ideal originated in the mind and existing only in the eye of the beholder.

Needless to say, a storm of protest arose from the assembled guests — and when it came my turn to discuss the matter, I was very much embarrassed. You see, my business, my pleasure, is to tell almost my whole life had been devoted to beauty, and when I was called upon to voice my feelings on the subject, it was not an opinion I was expected to deliver, but a decision.

"I agree that we create beauty ourselves — but not that it is a vision," I told them. "I agree that what is a modern idea of loveliness may tomorrow be much less desirable. But I modify that statement by insisting that certain fundamentals have been, and will be unchanged, no matter how many thousands of years may pass over this old world. Can you not see?" I asked. "That whether we study Rembrandt or Corot, Frank Hals or the most modern of modern artists, always there are beauty fundamentals repeated?"

"Well, admitting that, and I believe you're right — then nine women out of a possible dozen lose their looks forever by the time they're thirty," responded Deboutante Jeannie.

"Nonsense!" I answered sharply.

"Women don't lose their looks forever, they lose them only while they are foolish enough to permit them to remain lost. I tell you, there is scarcely a woman or girl who cannot be lovely with the smallest amount of good sensible care."

"Would you bet on that?" asked young John, with mischief in his eye.

"Well, if I found you a girl without single good point to recommend her, do you mean to tell me you could make her pretty yourself?"

"I do," I answered. "I most emphatically do! Besides there is no girl who has not — not one — but a dozen good points!"

"That's a go. I'll take you up if it's your game!" declared John, quite serenely unconscious of the fact that in the first place, the challenge was his, and in the second, that no stakes had been named.

To make a long story short, I was to stand the expenses of the experiment, and each of us hazarded one thousand dollars, the loser's sum to be paid to the girl at the end of three months.

Not infrequently excessive smokers find their lips are slightly burned, leaving white spots. These sometimes lead to cancer often long after the person has abandoned the habit of smoking, for the irritation that produces cancer may act for some time after the irritant has been removed.

Now stop trying to treat this condition yourself. I warn you it will probably be very serious unless you have it attended to once.

If you will write to American Society for the Control of Cancer

25 West 43rd Street, New York City, they will send you printed material on cancer.

Animals sometimes have this disorder. For instance, there is the albinism rabbit. It may also occur in the bird, fish and plant kingdom.

Those who are subject to albinism are known as albinos.

In this condition there is a permanent absence of pigment in the skin, hair and in the pupil and iris of the eyes. The skin is milky white, all the hair, eyebrows, lashes, etc., is white or yellow white, silky and fine, the iris pinkish or pale blue, and the pupils red or pink. The eyes are very sensitive to light and they are apt to be near-sighted and have myopia (involuntary vibratory movement of the eye ball).

Albinism is an inherited condition. It sometimes skips a generation. So your sister's child may not be an albino but her grandchildren may be. It has been noticed that not infrequently albinos are the offspring of first cousins who themselves may be normal.

It is not known why there should be this lack of development of the pigment, and there is no known treatment or remedy for it.

HEAT HOLIDAYS

Prevailing high temperature is the least of the worries of pupils of St. Brigid Parochial school.

Because of the heat, the children were dismissed at noon for the day on both Tuesday and Wednesday. These half-holidays will be continued, at least the remainder of this week, until the weather becomes cooler.

The Parochial school enrollment for the fall term is announced as 165, a slight decrease from last year.

DURNBAUGH SETS PACE FOR EVEN GREAT RAJAH HORNSBY AT BAT

Staging a batting spree last Sunday, Durnbaugh, leading Reserve hitter, made three hits, one-third of the total number his team gained off three Dayton Police pitchers, and raised his season's average to the lofty figure of .395. Barlow, his closest rival for batting honors, trails him by thirty-seven percentage points.

The team batting average slumped from .324 to .319, a decrease of five points.

Durnbaugh is leading the team in runs scored with twenty-eight. Durnbaugh has made the most hits, thirty-four, leads in stolen bases with ten in triples with four and in home runs with six, thus having a monopoly on individual honors. Barlow is credited with the most sacrifice hits, six, and the most doubles with nine. Batting records follow:

EUGENICS MOTHER

Actress Says Marriage Is An Injustice To Child.

Kate Pullman and her eugenics baby.

By IONE QUINBY

Staff Writer for Central Press and

The Gazette

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 13.—Marriage with its constant bickerings, its crushing of individualities and its inevitable showdown, tends to wrap a child's life. A baby born to an unwed mother stands a far better chance of getting a healthy, happy start in life than one that opens its eyes in a home sanctified by law but warped by marital friction.

This belief, as much as her desire to bear a perfect baby, led

Kate Pullman, vaudeville actress, to decide to give birth to a baby without the benefit of clergy. A quarreling, unhappy home is a cruel injustice to an innocent child, according to the actress, who declared in her room in a hospital where she lies with her baby, that nine homes out of ten become loveless in a few months or years.

Other famous eugenic babies to make the limelight recently are those born to Sylvia Pankhurst, the suffragist, and Mrs. Gladys Burnham, of New York.

"There is no reason in the world

why a woman should not have a bust and handsome. I told him frankly of my desire for a baby if she wants it, even though she is not married," the mother of the new eugenic baby declares. "Every normal woman wants a baby. And every normal woman saw experts in eugenics. We took known that marriage doesn't remain happy, because love never lasts in all its first intensity. I tried marriage once with a man named Edward Smith. It was a great disillusionment. My observations since have been that most married couples stay together for the sake of appearance or for economical reasons. A child is better off in a home where two human beings aren't tied together."

Miss Pullman admits that William Diner, of Cincinnati, is the father of her baby and declares that she searched the world over before she found the type of man she wanted to be her child's father.

"I wanted a perfect baby, but I also wanted one whose life would not be spoiled by marital disagreements," she continued. "Finally in Cincinnati I met the man my mind had pictured. He is six feet two inches, black haired, dark eyed, roundly and the baby, a boy, was born and weighed eleven pounds, five and three quarters ounces. My baby has been a member of that organization for the past four years.

The Theater

By FLEET SMITH

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.— What will the well-dressed movie wear next? The Hollywood producer who can guess next season's picture styles needn't worry about where his 'breakfast' is coming from.

Pictures run in certain definite modes just as uniformly as women's Easter hats. Call them cycles, if you want to be important. The successful novelty immediately becomes a pattern upon which many others are modeled.

Most recently the style has run to crime and Russia. "Underworld", which raised George Bancroft to stardom, was perhaps the first film sincerely to deal with the brutality and sentiment which lie below the law-abiding surface of big city civilization. It was one of the smashing successes of last ing its lead, half a dozen flying pictures have made their bids for fame.

There's a big chance ahead for the trail-blazer. What's next?

After all these months of expectation, I have at length seen "The Wedding March," Erich von Stroheim's spectacular novel of high society in brilliant imperial old pre-war Vienna. It's to be released this fall by Paramount.

I think it is one picture which amply justifies the superlative "Great". And the use of "navel" to describe it was intentional. There is a deliberate building up of backgrounds and characters; a cumulative effect about the climax, which suggests the methods of the novelist rather than of the movies.

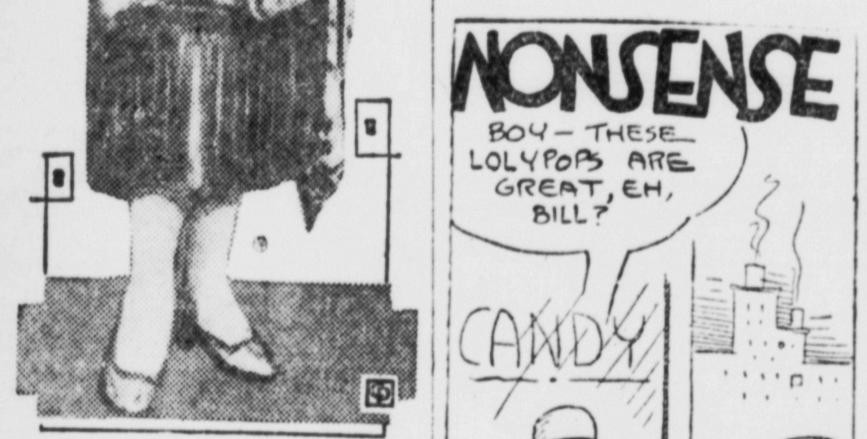

Twenty Years Ago - '28

Two full battalions of the Second Regiment, U. S. Infantry, marching from the rifle range at Camp Perry, O., to Fort Thomas, reached Xenia and are in camp temporarily at the fairgrounds.

The haze which is hanging over this section like a thick fog and partly obscuring the sun, is said to be smoke from the mammoth forest fires in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

season. Immediately the popping of machine guns could be heard on every lot in Hollywood.

For a long time after the war, Russia was so despised in popular imagination that no producer would consider a film in that setting. Now the most highly praised film of the year is the Ernst Lubitsch production, "The Patriot," starring Emil Jannings, based on Russian history. Early this year Jannings appeared in another great success, the bolshevik revolution story of "The Last Command." John Barrymore is currently seen in "Tempest", likewise Russian. And there are many others.

A few years ago the western picture was scorned; merely the juvenile "horse opera." Then Paramount made "The Covered Wagon," dealing in an epic manner with the winning of the west. It was the forerunner of dozens of westerns. After the war, no war picture had a chance. Then came "The Big Parade," and in its wake a host of war films, showing whole armies in mighty conflict. Beery and Hutton brought in team comedy with "Behind the Front." Other teams galore.

Aviation pictures had been attempted with trifling success, and the idea was practically discarded. The epochal success of "Wings" revolutionized the outlook. Follow-

KONJOLA CONQUERS

Xenia Resident Restored From State of Misery to Buoyant Health by Wonderful New Medicine.

Not only as a health restorative but a builder-up of the entire system, Konjola is making a wonderful record in Xenia and vicinity just as this wonder medicine does wherever introduced. At the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main Street, this city, the Konjola Man is meeting scores of sufferers daily, where are pointed out countless cases wherein this remedy has succeeded where all others have failed to bring relief in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles, and in severe cases of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. The history of Konjola's remarkable efficiency adds a new chapter in the case of Mr. J. W. Haynes, 114 Chestnut Street, Xenia, as he related his experience to the Konjola Man a few days ago.

Mr. Haynes attained a complete restoration to health after a very brief treatment with Konjola, and to say that he is delighted with the results is putting it mildly. Mr. Haynes said:

"Several years ago my stomach began to give me trouble. I thought the attack was a passing one, but it stayed with me and grew constantly worse. I tried several doctors and many remedies, but nothing made any headway against the indigestion. However light my diet, the stomach refused to function properly, and I suffered intensely from gas and bloating. That was bad enough, but my strength failed rapidly. I could not sleep at nights, and was fit only to lie around the house. My kidneys became affected, and many times every night I had to get up. Dizzy spells added to my misery, and I was about to despair of ever finding anything to help me."

"Recently I read in The Gazette the experience a friend of mine had with Konjola, and I figured that if it helped him I knew how sick he had been it might help me. Well, the result exceeded my fondest expectations. From the very start of the treatment I felt better, and after a few bottles I was my normal self again. No more indigestion, no more sleepless nights, no more pains, dizzy spells, gas nor bloating. I can eat as I did years ago, before I had my first attack of indigestion. There is no medicine in the world to compare to Konjola."

Back of every bottle of Konjola stands a record of thousands of such happy experiences in new health. Konjola does not promise—it performs; this new medicine's greatest recommendation is its history of results, not claims. Those who suffer may take hope; thousands call Konjola a Godsend—a boon—a blessing—the greatest medicine in the world."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main Street, Xenia, where he is meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this

MR. HOOVER

Editor of The Gazette: Among the many pleasant incidents in connection with the recent home-coming none were more enjoyable to me than the calls from my former pupils in the dear "by gone." One was from Mr. H. M. Richardson of Cincinnati. Upon his return home he sent me a newspaper with a specially marked column and as I take it for granted he stands up for Hoover as president and teachers generally, I send it to you for publication.

Mrs. E. Hyslop Carruthers, WEST BRANCH, Ia.—Teachers everywhere, who have found their greatest reward in service, find gratification over the expression of appreciation for their work made by Herbert Hoover when he acknowledged, at his reception here, the debt of gratitude he owed to the school teacher of his early youth.

"There is present today," he said, "a lady who was for years my teacher in your public school. She embodies the spirit of that vast body of women who not only teach and inspire our children but watch over their wider destinies. You have come to do me courtesy as a son of Iowa. I take this occasion to acknowledge my debt to that lady, Mrs. Carran."

Some 44 years ago, in the little grade school at West Branch, "Bertie" Hoover, a boy of 8 years, was absorbing the fundamentals of his education under the tutelage of Mollie Brown (now Mrs. J. K. Carran). He has gone far since then, but it is typical of the man that he has not forgotten the sympathetic and understanding touch that had much to do with directing the thought of the lad he was into proper channels, and it is likewise typical that in making his gesture

"Gratitude to Teachers" In looking over the men who have achieved the highest place in the gift of the United States it is remarkable how many of them are able to trace the beginnings of their education back to some earnest man or woman, laboring in obscurity in some little drab schoolhouse setting on the edge of a country highway. Men like Jackson, Van Buren, Polk, Fillmore, Lincoln, Grant, Garfield and Calvin Coolidge, acknowledged their debt of gratitude to teachers otherwise unsung, and not the least significant gestures of Herbert Hoover was his frank pleasure in meeting Mrs. Carran.

"Gratitude," Mrs. Carran said not long ago, "is one of Herbert Hoover's strong traits. I feel more than repaid for all the trouble I ever took with him just to know that he should have remembered me through all these years."

In that remark, perhaps, Mrs. Carran has made the fitting reply of "that vast body of women" whom Mr. Hoover referred in his speech.

Elsem Posey, 16, youngest son of Mrs. Betty Posey, E. Main St., died Thursday morning at 1 o'clock from a complication of diseases.

He was a student of Lincoln School and attended the Zion Baptist Sunday School.

Besides his mother, he leaves three brothers, Willie, Alabama; Fred and Nelson, at home and one sister, Mrs. Minnie Brown, Alabama.

Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Miss Helen Ward, E. Market St., has returned from a pleasant vacation in Indianapolis and Richmond, Ind., and Cincinnati. She was away about two weeks.

Mr. James Hamilton, E. Second St., has returned from Indianapolis where he spent his summer vacation. He will enter Ohio State University this year. Mr. Hamilton was a graduate in the East High class of 1928.

Mrs. Olive Ward, Mrs. Eleanor Corrigan and sister, Miss Rilda Phelps, have returned from a trip to Cleveland, visiting with relatives and friends.

Mr. Charles Smith, son of the E. Main St. grocer, Mr. Wm. Smith, who spent his summer vacation in Detroit, arrived home Wednesday. He will enter Wilberforce University this year.

Mrs. Ethel Nixon (nee Baker), formerly of this place has been appointed teacher of music in the public schools of Montgomery, Ala.

Mrs. Anna Thomas, E. Market St., in company with her daughter-in-law and children, Mrs. Margaret Thomas of E. Second St., are the guests of Miss Ruth Calander, E. St. Louis, Ill.

An introductory banquet honoring the Rev. G. H. Bundy, the new minister in charge of the E. Main St. Christian Church, will be held Friday, September 14 at 7:30 p. m. The following program will be rendered: opening prayer by the Rev. J. H. Norman; solo, Miss Helen Wheeler Ferguson; address of welcome, the Rev. W. C. Allen; solo, the Rev. A. J. Allen; song, Dayton Community Chorus; topic, "What Our Church Expects," Mr. James Dickerson; "What the Churches Expect," the Rev. A. L. Dooley; solo, Mrs. J. F. Williams; "What," Prof. R. A. Braxton, "What the State Expects," the Rev. M. Jackson; reading, Mrs. Cora Johnson; solo, Mr. A. West; reciprocation, the Rev. G. H. Bundy; remarks by the Rev. C. L. Howard and F. L. Tate Committee on arrangements: Mrs. L. B. Bowen, president, Rev. G. H. Bundy, pastor, Rev. J. F.

Williams, master of ceremonies. The Rev. B. F. Merchant and wife of Wichita, Kas., in company with Mrs. C. Tilman, Miss H. McAfee and Mrs. M. Griffin enroute from the National Baptist Convention which met last week in Louisville, Ky., were guests Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harris, E. Market St. Miss Griffin will leave the first of December for Liberia, South Africa to do missionary work in the foreign field under the National Baptist Foreign Mission Board.
